

Capture Of Iwo Airfield "Imminent;" Planes Help

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Feb. 26 (AP)—Capture of Iwo Jima's second airfield, in the center of the strategic little island, was imminent today as three Marine divisions drove north with considerable air support in an intensified push.

This stiffest fight of the Pacific war went into its second week with the Yanks grimly holding almost half the island, 750 miles south of Tokyo, and making inexorable progress northward.

The Devil Dogs, already on the main airfield in the southern part of Iwo, captured the east-west runway of the central Iwo fighter field (Motoyama No. 2) late yesterday and enveloped two-thirds of the north-south runway after a full day of heavy fighting.

5,372 Marine Casualties
Their assault followed a preliminary bombardment by artillery and warship batteries. Carrier planes and Marianas based Liberator heavy bombers gave close support to the ground forces.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced the push today in a communique which made no further mention of the second heavy strike by Fifth Fleet carrier planes against the Tokyo area this month. The fleet could still be in the area.

The count of Japanese dead on Iwo reached 2,827 yesterday. The enemy garrison was estimated at 20,000 on D-Day.

The last report on American casualties was the figure of 5,372 dead, wounded and missing up to 6 p. m. Wednesday. The dead numbered 644 at that time.

Nimitz announced that the Third, Fourth and Fifth Marine Divisions of Maj. Gen. Harry Schmidt's Fifth Amphibious Corps launched their big attack "after preliminary bombardment by Marine artillery and heavy units of the Pacific Fleet."

"Fighting was heavy throughout the day," the communique said, "and at nightfall our forces were in possession of the east-west runway of the central Iwo field and about two-thirds of the north-south runway."

This was the last airfield in Japanese hands. A third field, in the northern part of the island, is under construction but far from completion. The only airfield long enough to accommodate bombers, Motoyama No. 1, was overrun by the Yanks the day after the invasion.

Japs Still Hold Out In Manila Ruins

By FRED HAMPSON
Manila, Feb. 26 (AP)—Officially the battle is over, but Manila rumbled today as American artillery blasted Japanese who used a surrender period to improve their positions in the two buildings they still hold.

At the entrance of Manila bay, Corregidor fortress was shaken anew by underground explosions touched off by enemy Marines committing mass suicide.

Last night loud speakers blared a final warning from Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler to Japanese in Manila's agricultural and finance buildings to "surrender, commit suicide or be killed."

The Japanese answered with sniper fire in the direction of the loud speakers. When the warning voice gave the enemy thirty minutes to evacuate, 1st Lt. Richard K. Bishop of East Brady, Pa., said some Japanese dashed from the building and dove into defense positions at its base, using the immunity period to improve their position.

Yanks Buried Alive
Main fighting was east of Manila along the Takahashi line.

There was no mention in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today of action in Manila. He announced Saturday that doughboys of the 37th Infantry and First Cavalry Divisions overwhelmed the enemy's final positions in south Manila's ancient Intramuros and destroyed the trapped garrison.

More than 12,000 Japanese bodies already had been counted.

On Corregidor two hundred survivors tried to make a run for it from the Malinta tunnel mouth after a tremendous blast but were cut down by enfilading fire of the 503rd Paratroopers and the 34th Regiment's Third Battalion.

Five big explosions were heard Friday night deep under Malinta hill.

Great pieces of tunnel were blown out Wednesday as the fatalistic Japanese touched off a subterranean ammunition dump. Several Yanks were buried alive and others were injured.

SECOND FLYING SON IS KILLED; OTHER MISSING

The second war casualty in the same family in less than four months struck over the week-end when Mrs. P. X. Colgan, McSherrytown, was informed by the War Department that her son, 1st Lieutenant Donald J. Colgan, 26, was killed in action over northern Italy on February 8. He would have been 27 next June 15.

Last November Mrs. Colgan was informed by War Department telegram that her son 2nd Lieutenant Robert P. Colgan was missing in the Burma theatre of operation since October 22.

Lieut. Donald Colgan enlisted in the Army Air Corps in March, 1942. Six weeks later he was sent to Hawaii and one day less than a year later he was returned to the States on a brief furlough and then was selected to attend Officer Candidate School where he was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant. In September, 1943, he was sent overseas and based at Corsica. This was his last known address.

He was attached to the 447th Bombing Squadron of the 321st Bombing Group.

The young officer was a bombardier-navigator and had flown many aerial raiding missions over Nazi-controlled countries.

A graduate of McSherrytown high school, Lieut. Colgan was employed at the American Chain and Cable Company, York, before he enlisted.

Son of Former Judge
The two young officers, both serving in the Army Air Forces, are the only two sons of Mrs. Colgan serving in the present world war. A number of sons-in-law are in service.

The two officers are brothers of Mrs. Richard S. Codori, North Stratton street, whose husband is in the Navy serving somewhere in the Atlantic theatre of operations. They are also brothers of Mrs. Mervin Kress, chief clerk at the local War Price and Rationing Board in the Hotel Eberhart.

The late F. X. Colgan was chairman of the Adams County Democratic Committee and a former associate judge of Adams county.

MRS. C. R. SMITH DIES OF STROKE

Mrs. Ella Smith, 71, wife of Calvin R. Smith, Gettysburg R. 4, died Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at her home near Hunterstown from the effects of a stroke which she suffered Thursday. She had been in ill health for the last year.

Mr. Smith formerly was steward at the county home and the Smiths resided there for a number of years.

Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the late Peter and Ellen (Sweeney) Haines and lived all of her life in this county. Surviving are her husband; two children, Mrs. Levi Spangler, at home, and Earl, Biglerville R. 1. There are three grandchildren.

Funeral services Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the Smith home with the Rev. U. A. Guss, supply pastor for the Great Congregational Presbyterian church at Hunters-town, officiating. Interment in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Smith was a member of the Great Congregational church and was president of the Women's Missionary society of that congregation.

Friends may call at the home this evening and until the hour of the funeral Tuesday.

Driver Is Fined After Collision Here

Charles J. Dillon, Biglerville, paid a $5 fine and costs following an accident at the intersection of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue, Saturday afternoon about 3:45 o'clock.

Total damage to both cars was estimated at about $200. The accident occurred when Dillon failed to stop for a red light signal at the intersection as he traveled north and struck the left side of a second car driven by Mrs. Billy Shearer, 253 Baltimore street, Borough Officer Clark W. Staley, who investigated, said, Mrs. Shearer was driving west on Lincoln avenue.

Dillon, a member of the Merchant Marine, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder and pleaded guilty to the charge of failing to stop for a red light. Damage to the Dillon car was estimated at about $50 and that to the Shearer machine at about $150. No one was injured.

Killed

Pfc. Charles Gene Hess, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Selmar H. Hess, 233 Chambersburg street, was killed in action December 17 on the western front. He was inducted in February, 1943, and served with the infantry. Pfc. Hess had been overseas since last October.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

The decision to have the governor and the state government of Pennsylvania participate in the annual Memorial Day exercises in Gettysburg definitely assures national recognition for this annual program. This was effectively proven last year when 38 governors attended the exercises.

Governor Martin's suggestion to have a governor from the south and one from the north, introduced last year, illustrated the intelligent thinking and the BIGNESS of Pennsylvania's war-time governor. His own presence added color and dignity to the occasion. As master of ceremonies again this year he will again attract national-wide interest because Governor Martin has moved to the forefront of this nation's conservative, sound and business executives.

We are again asked to appeal to every family in Gettysburg and Adams county to save waste paper for the war effort. Each day the need for waste paper increases and every person is asked to save every scrap all the time. . . or at least until this horrible war is over. Save your scrap paper . . . place it in containers or tie it into bundles. Each month it will be collected. Don't waste it. Don't burn it.

Pennsylvania families received $124,804.00 in life insurance death benefits during 1944, compared with $114,100.00 of the previous year and $102,067.000 (Please Turn to Page 5)

Former Countian In Army Hospital

Gordon Hull, USA, 20, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hull, Pleasantville, York county, former East Berlin residents, who has served in the Army for some time, is now in France and has been a medical patient in an army hospital there after having been taken ill.

The young man, who received a part of his education in the East Berlin borough school, is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Eli J. Gross and of Mr. Lizzie Hull, all of East Berlin, and has many other relatives in that section.

His uncle, Richard J. Gross, USA, was the first East Berlin serviceman to die in action, having been killed in action September 1, 1943, in the South Pacific. Another uncle, Irwin H. Gross, East Berlin, is serving in the Navy.

Youngster Struck In Eye By Arrow

J. Allen Wonders, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Wonders, York Springs R. D. is a patient at the Carlisle hospital as the result of a badly injured left eye received Sunday when struck by an arrow shot by his brother, Donnie.

Several sutures were required to close the wound. Dr. Donald Stoner, Carlisle, told a Times reporter today that he believes the eye will heal without the youngster's vision being impaired.

COUNTY TO KEEP OVER THIRD OF R.C. WAR FUND

While the $28,000 quota for the 1945 Red Cross War Fund is the highest ever assigned to the county, the percentage of the quota to be retained by the Adams county chapter is also the highest in the chapter's long history.

Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, chairman of the chapter, said that $10,500 or 37.5 per cent of the $28,000 quota will be retained while $17,500 will be remitted to the national Red Cross war fund.

The county chapter is given a greater portion of the total in order to meet the fast expanding requirements made on its home service department, which department is principally devoted to looking after the needs of servicemen and their families.

Expanded Home Service

Last year 550 telegrams were sent to Red Cross field directors in various camps in the United States affirming the need of servicemen's presence at home on account of illness, births or deaths in their families. Nearly $1,200 was spent in telegrams, telephone tolls and visitations to expedite requests for furloughs and extensions of furloughs in circumstances of this kind.

A servicemen's request for a furlough or extension of a furlough, because of circumstances at home, is referred by his commander to the Red Cross field director in his camp. The latter immediately writes the local chapter and a spot investigation of the circumstances is made immediately upon receipt of the telegram, regardless of the hour of the day or the night. Within minutes, the local chapter gives a reply to the field director specifying the circumstances and frequently the physician's assurance that the soldier's presence is desirable. This message is handled with equal speed at the camp and the serviceman is then on his way.

Another important phase of home service work is the matter of loans and grants made to servicemen and their families in emergencies. Nearly $4,500 was loaned in 1944 of which better than $2,500 has been repaid.

Fine Production Record

In 1944 the Adams County chapter expended a total of $11,179.91 to which was credited $2,535.20 repaid on servicemen's loans, making the net cost of operating $8,644.71. Administration costs were less (Please Turn to Page 2)

Fixes Damaged Plane In Flight To Base

Sgt. Clinton R. Solt, 22, son of Mrs. Lydia K. Solt, South Williamsport, had a big part in getting his staggering, flak-crippled B-17 Flying Fortress back to England recently after an attack on sub pens at Hamburg, Germany.

Plak knocked out two engines, cut the oxygen supply and severed the elevator and rudder control cables. Working with the aerial engineer, Sgt. Solt repaired the cables which enabled the plane to land safely. During the two hours of frantic effort required to fix the damaged controls it was necessary to work with the use of emergency oxygen bottles.

Mrs. Solt is the former Miss Katie Clapsaddle, of Gettysburg. She is a sister of Mrs. Bert Hummer, Gettysburg, Jesse Clapsaddle and Anna Clapsaddle of Gettysburg R. D.

Col. John J. Clutz Is Awarded Legion Of Merit

John J. Clutz, of Fort Wayne, Ind., Persian Gulf command headquarters has announced.

Colonel Clutz is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Clutz, West Broadway.

Brig. Gen. Donald P. Booth, commanding the PGC, presented the medal at special ceremonies in the general's office at Amirabad Post here recently. Scrap Collection Exceeds Ten Tons

With a few odd lots of salvage yet to be collected today, Gettysburg firemen said the February collection made Sunday afternoon will total "over 10 tons" including about nine and a half tons of waste paper. Tin cans and other metals account for the balance.

Using five trucks about 20 firemen worked from 1:30 p. m. until 4 o'clock and covered the entire town. They used two trucks loaned by Morris Gitlin, one from B. W. Hummer and two fire company trucks to collect the scrap material.

Vernon Corie, salvage chairman for the fire company, said that plans are being made to truck a collection of processed tin cans to Baltimore later this week. The collection of cans that have been accumulated at local school buildings probably will be made Tuesday or Wednesday, he said.

FLIER WHO WAS TRAINED HERE HAS AIR MEDAL

Two years ago Henry Joseph McCann, of Chateaugay, N. Y., was a freshman at the Plattsburg, N. Y., State Teachers' College. In April of 1943 he came to Gettysburg college as a cadet in the College Training Detachment of the Army Air Forces. On Sunday he returned here to visit friends, a veteran bombardier of the 15th Air Force in Italy with 35 bombing missions to his credit and winner of the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters. He is now First Lieutenant Henry J. McCann. He will be 21 years old next October 2.

Young McCann enlisted in the Air Corps in December, 1942. On February 22, 1943, he reported at Atlantic City. Two months later he was sent here to pursue the preliminary flight training at the Gettysburg airport and scholastic studies at the college. Two months later, in June, he was sent to Nashville, AAF reclassification center; then he went to Santa Ana, Calif., Las Vegas, Nev., and Carlsbad, New Mexico, where on April 1, 1944, he was commissioned a 2nd Lt. as a bombardier. Seven months later he was promoted to First Lieutenant.

Sent To Italy

From Carlsbad young McCann was sent to Fresno, Calif., and three weeks later he went to Tonopah, Nevada. After a brief overseas training period he was sent to Italy arriving at the 15th Air Base on July 30. He joined his squadron on July 31 and on August 2 he flew his first bombing mission over southern France. There followed raids in B-24's over Germany, Austria, France, Northern Italy, Rumania, Hungary.

Solt repaired the cables which enabled the plane to land safely. During the two hours of frantic effort required to fix the damaged controls it was necessary to work with the use of emergency oxygen bottles.

Tanks And Infantry Push Across Rhine Valley; Reds Move Toward Baltic Sea

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, Feb. 26 (AP)—Two American Armies sped five miles across the Rhine valley today in tanks and on foot to within 13 miles of Cologne and within six miles of the great Ruhr arsenal and its border city of Muenchen Gladbach.

Sweeping up 25 or more towns, the American Ninth and First Armies closed within three miles of the Erft river—last water barrier before the sprawling Rhine metropolis of Cologne—and moved within 19 miles southwest of Duesseldorf, administrative center of the Ruhr.

Cologne's spires were in sight.

The assault front broadened to 40 miles and was strengthened continuously by the infusion of streams of tanks, self-propelled guns and fresh manpower.

Some 60 miles below the Cologne plain battle, the American Third Army in a swift seven-mile sprint reached the Nims river near Bitburg and outflanked the ancient fortress city of Trier. The gain carried five miles into the Siegfried past the Saar river town of Saarburg. The Canadian First Army applied heavier pressure on the Ruhr from the north.

Berlin Gets Biggest Raid

London, Feb. 26 (AP)—More than 1,200 American heavy bombers carried out the war's biggest attack on Berlin today, streaming over the German capital in a 150-mile long procession.

Guarding bombers over the target were 700 long-range Mustangs and Thunderbolts.

The first announcement by U. S. Strategic Air Force headquarters said the attack was directed against railway targets and most of the bombs were dropped through clouds.

The bomber fleet exceeded by approximately 200 planes the size of the assault on Berlin Feb. 3.

DNB in an early afternoon broadcast said a 150-mile long train of bombers was still approaching the city while the first formations attacked the capital.

Starting at 10 a. m. German broadcasts repeatedly reported the movements of large bomber formations attacking the Reich for the 14th consecutive day.

Destroy 81 Nazi Planes

RAF Mosquitos attacked Berlin last night.

Allied Air Forces flew more than 5,000 sorties yesterday, exclusive of the U. S. 15th Air Force in Italy, which carried its record assault on targets in Austria and southern Germany through the 13th day. The 15th conducted its smash in direct—and requested—support of the Russian armies.

The German Air Force was active in some sectors against the Allied assault coming from all directions. At least 46 Nazi planes were shot out of the sky, 27 by Americans and 19 by the British. An additional 35 were destroyed on the ground.

Incomplete returns disclosed four Allied medium and light bombers and 28 fighters missing.

Countian Figures In Auto Collision

Two automobiles were badly wrecked about 6 o'clock last Thursday evening when they collided five miles north of Taneytown on Route 71. None of the occupants was injured, but both machines were damaged to the extent of $800, Maryland state police reported.

According to Sgt. J. K. Cushman, who investigated, the car of John Paul Koozt, Taneytown, operated by Chester M. Cartzenadner, 26, Taneytown, crashed into one traveling in the opposite direction driven by Marvin W. Margret, 38, Littlestown. Cushman said Cartzenadner attempted to pass another automobile and collided with the Margret car, which is owned by Frank Margret, Littlestown.

Carmen Austin and Shirley Rhinehart, passengers in the Cartzenadner machine, were unhurt. Both drivers are charged with reckless driving and will be given hearings before Magistrate J. Vincent Tubman in Taneytown on March 2 at 7:30 o'clock.

NAZI RESERVE STRENGTH WILL BE ESSENTIAL

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

The moderate resistance thus far encountered by the western Allies in their great Rhineland offensive is a welcome but surprising circumstance which is far from self-explanatory.

Unless the German defense is wholly unequal to the task of making a stand against the terrific striking power that General Eisenhower is employing, we must expect Nazi Field Marshal Von Rundstedt to counter-attack shortly. In fact such counter blows normally would have been delivered already. This calls for reserves, and the position hinges on whether the greatly weakened Hitlerites have them. If Rundstedt lacks reserves, then he is indeed in mortal danger, for both his flanks are being turned while his center is being hit by American First and Ninth Army forces which Berlin estimates at 600,000.

The Nazi marshal's alternative to making a stand on the Cologne plain would be to withdraw across the Rhine. As I previously have explained, this crossing would be a most hazardous operation, since it would expose a retreating army to the full fury of the Allied air power. It is Eisenhower's hope that the Germans will stand and fight west of the Rhine, so that he may annihilate them. We shall know soon how the wind blows, for our spearhead striking for the great Rhineland rail center of Cologne already is within sight of its spires.

Allied Vise of Death
The Allied position naturally grows stronger with each passing hour. Our big job at the outset is to rush supplies across the flooded Roer river to keep our armies moving. Our capture of Duren—key city on the Roer—in hand-to-hand fighting will vastly facilitate the movement of equipment and supplies of all sorts.

Meantime the Russians are getting set for what may be the final drive to reach Berlin. The focal points of their attack is likely to be southeast of the capital across the Neisse river and through the city of Cottbus. While they are maneuvering for position in this sector, they are making a further drive into Pomerania to lessen the danger of a German counter-attack against the Red northern flank when the push against Berlin is in full swing.

As this Allied vise of death tightens about Nazidom, Fuehrer Hitler is trying to buttress the fortitude of his people with the philosophy of despair that the country already has taken so bad a beating "there is no greater terror in store for us." He undoubtedly recognizes that this is a heavy understatement of fact, since only now are the Allies in position to exact full payment for their long spade-work.

Civilians Will Die
Terrific blows are being directed against the Reich by the "invisible front"—the air. Ever since Hitler embarked on his scheme to enslave Europe he has had as his ace-in-the-hole (just in case something went wrong and he had to fall back on the defensive) his so-called inner-fortress. That comprised the heavily fortified frontiers of the Reich within which we would be safe from all the armies of the world—or so he thought. But the Hitlerian intuition overlooked that while his fortress had powerful walls, it didn't have a roof.

Now the Allied bombing fleets—the greatest ever flung into the skies—are taking advantage of a burst of good weather to rip the heart out of Hitler's fortress. While the Allied ground forces are smashing huge gaps in the perimeter of the Nazi fortress, their warplanes are wiping out the resources upon which he has depended to repair such damage.

Thus not only is the air destroying great sections of the structure which has been holding up the fighting fronts, but the smashing of transport facilities has cut Berlin and other cities off from many necessities of life. Within these stricken places countless thousands of civilians will die.

Greece, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

Through all his missions Lt. McCann escaped without a scratch. He flew all his missions, with the exception of one, with the same pilot. The same crew "stuck together" through all the aerial raids. His ship had been damaged "but not seriously," he said.

On January 26 of this year he and his crew returned to this country. On February 20, two days less than two years after he reported at Atlantic City he returned to that same base.

He has 236 combat hours out of 520 hours in the air to his credit.

Lieut. McCann is one of the more than 1,500 young men who received their preliminary aerial training here who are now on active duty, many of whom are flying on all the war fronts.

He was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Culver, Hanover street.

Small Flowered Begonias Thrive In Window Gardens

Few plants flower as freely in the window garden as the small-flowered begonia. Begonia semperflorens, says Miss Gisela Grimm, formerly of Gettysburg, in an article in the New York Herald Tribune on Sunday. Numerous varieties are grown, most of them dwarf and compact in habit, with small, waxy flowers, either white or in shades of pink and red. The leaves of some varieties are fresh, shining green, while the leaves of some of the darker-flowering kinds have beautiful reddish and bronze tones.

Begonia semperflorens is one of the fibrous-rooted begonias, the group which is most satisfactorily cultivated by the amateur under ordinary living-room conditions. The Rex begonia and the Christmas begonia require special care, and the amateur does well to confine his efforts with begonias indoors to Begonia semperflorens and others of the fibrous-rooted group, which respond so freely to a little care.

Easily Grown by Amateur

Begonia argentea guttata, with rich green foliage heavily spotted with silver, and clusters of pink flowers, is easily grown by the amateur. Begonia Haageana is another species which is easily grown. The foliage, a bronzy-green above and reddish on the under side, is very striking. The clusters of pale pink flowers are also attractive.

Many failures with begonias are due to careless watering. Water should be given sparingly, for the leaves will drop if the soil is kept too wet. Good drainage is important and begonias will not long survive without it. On the other hand, a moist atmosphere is necessary, for a dry one will also cause the leaves to fall. A humidifier or even pans of water on the radiators will add moisture to dry, steam-heated rooms.

An ideal arrangement is to have

Lettuce In The Home Garden

Lettuce is one of the most healthful of all vegetables, not only because it is eaten raw and thereby loses none of its vitamins and minerals in cooking, but because it is exceptionally rich in those vital properties. Of course, the green-leaved sorts are far richer in vitamins than the lighter or bleached leaves of heading varieties. In fact, the home gardener should seldom attempt to grow head lettuce for two important reasons—First, it is extremely difficult to grow under local weather conditions; second, the leaf varieties can be grown easily over a longer period of the year at less cost of materials and labor.

The first or extra early bed of lettuce should be started in a sunny coldframe before the last of February. It is possible by employing simple protective methods to grow lettuce for home use every month in the year. Of course, to start a February bed it will be necessary to have some dry, fertile loam, which wise gardeners are learning to store each autumn for such emergencies.

Lettuce is not injured by light frosts. However, it will be advisable to keep the early bed covered with glass, if started in a coldframe, or otherwise protected on threatening nights until the dangers of severe frosts are past. The natural advantages of a sunny nook beside a fence or building should not be overlooked in choosing a site. In such locations a muslin or cheesecloth covering is often sufficient protection.

Successive plantings One of the principal keys to successful lettuce growing is to have a bed of young, crisp leaves coming into production as soon as the former bed begins to fail. This requires a successive plan of starting a new bed every few weeks from late winter until mid-autumn. Beds in July and August should be located in a deeply mellow clay loam in a cool nook, thereby minimizing the evils of hot, dry weather.

There is no substitution for a naturally fertile soil for lettuce, usually supplemented by well composted and finely pulverized manure worked uniformly through the top six inches. Sunny, idle fence rows make excellent lettuce beds throughout spring and early fall months because of their normally good drainage and fertility. Under no circumstances should lettuce soils be acid.

It is difficult to recommend a commercial fertilizer to meet all soil requirements, but in most cases a 5-8-5 or 4-12-4 mixture serves satisfactorily, broadcast and worked into the surface soil a few days before sowing seed. Backward beds may be stimulated to increased plant vigor by one or more applications of nitrogenous fertilizer administered at the rate of one ounce of nitrate of soda in two gallons of water. Apply with a long-pouted watering can to distribute the water on the soil surface without wetting the leaves.

If only the larger leaves are cut carefully from each plant, instead of the customary practice of cutting all the leaves off at one time, leaf lettuce will continue to bear over a period of several weeks. It should be the plan of every 1945 gardener to have a bed of crisp lettuce in production from spring until late autumn or early winter. Here is a peer of healthful vegetables which belongs prominently in all well rounded home gardens.

Blue Points Buy Tenth Of Diet Needs

Of 11,700 calories which a family of five requires as a daily minimum, Department of Agriculture experts say a minimum of 1,400 to 1,640 should come from fruits and vegetables.

But blue point allowance, less than 10 points a day, will not buy one-tenth this calorie quota in canned fruits and vegetables.

Start cross now in flats or pots at two-week intervals for transplanting in April.

Prune wistarias before the buds begin to swell.

Remove egg masses of tent caterpillars.

Rhubarb Planting And Care

Rhubarb is not only one of the most healthful of all vegetables, it is among the most profitable of early garden crops for marketing. It belongs in every home garden. How to select and prepare soils, planting and general care are simply explained in our free rhubarb growing instructions. Readers are urged to write for their free copies at once, as roots should be planted within the next two weeks. Please enclose a 3-cent stamp and include all the gardening questions you wish to ask the editor.

SPADE THE EASY WAY; DO LITTLE BIT EACH DAY

The basic principle of the Victory Gardening campaign is self-reliance. Since the organized services of food production and transportation are overburdened, the Victory gardener lifts a burden from them by producing through his own efforts food which calls for no transportation or marketing service.

Many gardeners are ready to assume this burden except for the first step, which is spading the garden. They prefer to wait for a plowman who may never come, and let the best time to prepare the soil slip by, rather than undertake this work themselves.

And in the end even if they get their garden plots plowed, they may have as much work to put the soil in shape as if they had spaded it in the beginning. Because small garden plots cannot be effectively plowed, and where large areas are turned over, it is seldom that the preparation is satisfactory for intensive cultivation.

An Hour A Day

Spading is not hard work if done a little at a time. A space 30-50 feet can be spaded in a leisurely way in eight hours. One hour a day for eight days, and the job is done.

Never spade leaves or any similar plant debris into the soil in the spring. It takes more than a year for them to decay, and undecayed material in the soil is bad for your plants, and worse for you, in sowing and cultivating. It is better to strip sod, and pile it up to decay. When it is reduced to humus, it will benefit the garden. Pieces of wood, stones, and all other foreign material should be removed from the soil.

Systematic spading makes the job easier, and more complete. Here is one way to do it: Set a definite task for your first day's work, say a strip six feet wide, running the shortest dimension of the garden. At one end dig a ditch, say one foot wide and the depth of the spade, removing all soil from it. Pile this soil near the opposite end of the strip.

The Right Way

Now begin to spade with the blade not parallel to the trench, but at right angles to it. This enables you to lift the soil more easily, and deposit it in the trench. The spade should be driven down not on a slant, but perpendicularly to its full depth. Take a small slice of the soil, so your back is not strained.

Lift it up, turn the spade over so that the top soil falls underneath and bottom soil on top. In filling the first trench, you have opened a second.

If you wish to spade under manure, spread it evenly over the area except for the top of your initial trench. When this first trench has been dug, clean the manure from the top of the next trench and throw it into the bottom of the first; then proceed with your spading, piling the soil on top of the manure.

When you have finished your day's quota, you will have an empty trench, which should be filled with the soil you removed from the initial trench.

It is important not to work soil when it is too wet. Mould a ball of earth in your hand; and pat it to make a mud pie. If the pie holds together, the soil is too wet to spade; if it crumbles, then you can work it.

Painting on canvas was known in Rome as early as 66 A. D.

Debate: The members of the Flat-bush and Belmont Debating Societies met at the Springs Hotel on Tuesday evening to discuss the question whether America has produced a citizen comparable with Washington. Quite a number of members of both Societies participated in the discussion, which is said to have been interesting and creditable to the societies.

Anniversary: The Phrenokosmian Society of Pennsylvania College held its Anniversary in Agricultural Hall on Tuesday evening, a large audience being in attendance. The original orations were generally characterized by chaste style and mature thought. The elocution throughout was highly creditable. The exercises were interspersed by excellent vocal music. Miss Alice K. Baugher presiding at the piano.

Exhibition.—The colored folks had an exhibition in their church on Tuesday evening, the 22d, which was repeated on Wednesday evening. Old and young participated in the programme, which seemed to be highly enjoyed by the audience. The church not being large, and a portion being occupied by the staging, the accommodations for the audience were limited.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
Anniversary Celebration.—The 14th Anniversary of the Philomathean "Society" of Pennsylvania College, was celebrated on Wednesday evening in Christ's church, Gettysburg. There was a very large audience assembled on the occasion; and we think we speak the sentiments of all, when we say that rarely has there been a more interesting celebration. The young men who delivered addresses on the occasion acquitted themselves well, and conferred honor on their Society and the Institution.

UMW POLICY COMMITTEE BEGINS WORK

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The United Mine Workers' huge policy committee begins fateful discussions today on demands to be made by John L. Lewis in negotiating a new contract next month with bituminous operators.

The committee, consisting of 250 elected officials of the union, will meet for three days at UMW headquarters, just three blocks from the White House.

Just what Lewis' demands will be only he and a few close associates know, but almost any wage concession is likely to conflict with the government's stabilization policy and may bring on a new crisis requiring White House intervention as in 1943.

The negotiations for a new bituminous contract begins Thursday. The old one expires in a month. One month later—April 30—the anthracite pact runs out.

The situation is being watched tensely largely because of these factors:

1. The coal shortage, more acute this year than at any time in recent history.

2. Government authorities fear Lewis may try to smash the Little Steel formula, on which the stabilization program is pegged.

3. Predictions that work-or-kill legislation could be pushed through Congress almost overnight if Lewis should stage another strike as he did over his last contract in 1943.

Both the AFL and CIO have tried vainly for nearly a year to persuade Mr. Roosevelt to abandon the Little Steel formula with its limitation on wage increases pegged at 15 percent above January, 1941, levels.

Probable Demands
But Lewis may succeed with the economic pressure of a mine strike at his command.

While Lewis has not disclosed his demands, it is generally believed he is considering something like this:

1. A 25-cent general increase in the miners' present basic pay of $1 an hour; 2. The full hourly rate for travel time, instead of the two-thirds rate now paid; and 3. Second and third shift differentials of five and ten cents an hour, respectively.

Stopping on the Stairs: "Lift up your eyes on high and behold—" Isaiah 40:26. Read Psalm 121.

They were wise about the stars as star-wisdom went then in old Chal-dea—but they stopped too soon. The stars are only stairways to God; they stopped with the stars themselves and had no vision of the Eternal for whom the heavens were only a curtain.

So much of our confusion in faith and conduct comes from stopping on the stairs. In business, for example; for business is so much more than just getting on and making money. It is a service to all in shared well-being. Household work may become sheer drudgery if the home-maker does not see the beauty of an ordered home at the top of the stairs. Politics are always a tissue of schemes, adjectives and ambitions unless we see good government at the top of the stairs. Even religion; it too may become mere form and habit unless worship leads to the sureness of God and faith to a sustaining confidence in His power and wisdom.

The glory of the starry skies is the revelation of a power beyond the stars. We miss so much because we do not, will not look higher, think further and follow truth and goodness to their source. Upstairs has no limit but God.

Prayer: Forgive us, Lord, of every shining height, the sight that stops too soon. Grant us the vision of the service above all earthly powers and guide our questing vision to rest in Thee. In the Master's name. Amen.

Reading 'Paralyzed' By Railway Tieup

Reading, Pa., Feb. 26 (AP)—The second transportation tie-up in less than three months left transit facilities of the Reading Street Railway company paralyzed today, forcing thousands to walk and hitchhike to work as the tie-up entered its second day.

Approximately 300 employees of the railway company, which serves 90,000 persons in the Lebanon-Reading area, failed to work yesterday following a meeting at which they were reported to have voted to "take a holiday."

The action by the members of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Street Railway and Motor Coach employees (AFL) followed an all-day meeting Saturday before the Regional War Labor Board in Philadelphia which heard testimony on eight of 22 points on which the company and union were in disagreement.

Carl F. Will, regional WLB director, said the results of the meeting "would not be available until" later today. He said "under a contract extended Nov. 28 all issues were to be arbitrated."

CARRIER PLANES AND B29S POUND JAPAN TARGETS

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Feb. 26 (AP)—Industrial targets in the Tokyo area and elsewhere on Japan's main island of Honshu took a powerful one-two punch from American aerial might yesterday as wave after wave of carrier-based planes roared over followed by more than 200 Superfortresses—largest B-29 fleet ever assembled.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz communique today made no further mention of the carrier strike—maintaining the same silence which followed the Fifth Fleet's two-day carrier smash against Tokyo Feb. 16, 17.

Radio Tokyo said 1,600 carrier planes and 165 sky giants made the twin aerial attacks Sunday. Subsequently Tokyo trimmed the carrier planes to 600. The War Department reported that more than 200 Superfortresses participated. All returned.

Premier Apologizes
The Superfortresses dropped bombs and incendiaries for two hours through a heavy snowfall. Snow has little effect on incendiaries. Damage was done to airfields, military installations and transportation facilities in the Tokyo area, radio Tokyo said, adding "bombs started fires in various sections" but "they were almost entirely quelled by nightfall."

Bombs fell in an area adjacent to the guard house at the gates of Omiya palace, residence of the Emperor Dowager *Sadako and the bureau of the imperial stables, the Japanese said.

Premier Kuniaki Koiso made a second call on Emperor Hirohito today on behalf of the cabinet, this time to "offer our profound apologies for the unforgivable negligence" in the approach of danger to his person.

"Explanation" For Jap Fleet
Explaining the Japanese fleet's reluctance to come out and fight, Radio Tokyo said that "the fleet had adopted the strategy of operating within the radius of action of land-based aircraft."

"It is technically impracticable for our land-based aerial formations to deal decisive blows to the American naval forces so long as the enemy task forces remain at a long distance," the broadcast explained, "but if they venture into waters near our coast, the air units of the Japanese Army and Navy will find themselves in a favorable position."

During Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's first Fifth Fleet strike against Tokyo one U. S. surface unit closed to within 10 miles of the Japanese mainland. Associated Press War Correspondent Robert Geiger said a destroyer rescued a Navy airplane crew within 10 miles of Tokyo's harbor while large units of the fleet came closer than 100 miles of the Japanese mainland to destroy Japanese picket boats.

George Washington vetoed only two bills during his presidency.

Ask General Eisenhower what your RED CROSS is doing for our Fighting Men

GENERAL "IKE" knows—better than anybody else—how many of his wounded G.I. Joes are saved from death by life-saving Red Cross Blood Plasma!

He knows how a young soldier worries when there's no news from loved ones—or bad news—and how his spirits rise when a special Red Cross Home Service message says everything is O.K. at home.

And this is what General "Ike" says about the Red Cross:

"We simply couldn't get along without it. I consider the Red Cross an auxiliary of my army. They are doing a perfectly magnificent job in every way."

ASK G.I. JOE

He'll tell you what the Red Cross does for him—and how! Listen to this boy's letter to his dad:

"Pop, whenever the Red Cross comes to you for money, give what you can spare, as they are wonderful to us."

And here's another:

"Dad, if you help anything or anybody, please give to the Red Cross because they help us. Plenty! If it wasn't for them, I don't know what our overseas soldiers would do. So Dad, do as I say. Help the Red Cross just for me!"

ASK YOURSELF

Ask yourself: "Have I done as much as I can for my Red Cross—which is at my boy's side—ready to aid, comfort and cheer him?"

You can't do too much to help the devoted workers in this great Army of Mercy—who risk their lives over and over again to bring our millions of G.I. Joes the proof that they are not forgotten by their home folks.

The Red Cross is doing your job—doing for your boy what you can't do. But you can help by giving more to the Red Cross now. Its job is stupendous—and it's growing bigger.

Give as much more as you can—today!

He received his bachelor of science in civil engineering degree from Gettysburg in 1924. He was called to active duty in April, 1942.

His wife and four children, John, Jr., Richard, Christopher, and Signe, live at their home in Fort Wayne.

952 COUNTIANS GET ASSISTANCE

A total of 669 cases involving 952 persons were dependent on public assistance in Adams county for the week ending February 17, it was announced today by the state Department of Public Assistance.

The number of general assistance cases was 60, the report showed, and included 85 persons in those cases. Other breakdowns of the department's work showed that there were 457 old-age assistance recipients; 71 blind pension recipients, and a total of 81 families with 339 persons receiving benefits under the aid to dependent children provisions.

Robert P. Wray, acting secretary of public assistance for the Commonwealth, also announced that with the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Federal Directors' Association and with the support of federal directors throughout the state, the State Department of Public Assistance has revised its burial assistance policies effective February 15.

The revised policy sets forth the minimum requirements for casket, outer case, clothing, grave space, professional service and transportation, and the maximum prices allowed for each item by the Department of Public Assistance. "It will enable both the department and funeral directors to fulfill their responsibility, operate more effectively, and assure provision of prompt service and adequate burial for assistance recipients," Wray stated.

The Army Quartermaster Corps has developed a smokeless oil heater for tents.

In 1942, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

The payments in Pennsylvania were under 155,886 policies, compared with 141,533 in the previous year and 132,457 policies in 1942. $79,311,000 was under 34,253 ordinary policies; $18,326,000 was under 9,809 group life insurance policies and $27,167,000 was under 111,824 industrial insurance policies.

The national total of death benefits was $1,204,718,000.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a recent address before the Writers' War Board in New York said:

"Group animosities are warping the very foundation of American democratic life... if the day ever comes in this country when tolerance gives way to internal enmities and persecutions and discriminations, it will be the end of American civilization... intolerance is destructive. Prejudice produces no wealth. Discrimination is a fool's economy. The American fuses in his blood and spirit the virtues and vitalities of many races, creeds and cultures... giving us an amalgam that is new, unique and immeasurably strong... let's not apologize for the amazing variety of our human material here in America. Let us rather glory in it... In unit there is strength; in good-will there is prosperity; in tolerance there is progress... progress towards a better and a happier America."

FOOD SUBSIDY PLAN OUTLINED

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP) — A government-subsidized food program designed to assure the nation's low-income families an adequate diet may be advanced as a part of the administration's postwar economic plans.

The outline of such a program has been drawn by agriculture department economists and submitted to high administration leaders. Proponents say it would cost in excess of $1,000,000,000 a year under conditions similar to those prevailing in 1942. Funds required would increase with a lower level of jobs and income and would drop as prosperity increased.

The program bears some resemblance to the food stamp plan in effect between 1939 and 1943. It would, however, seek to aid all low-income families, whereas the stamp plan was employed as an emergency measure for helping only persons on relief and for disposing of farm surpluses.

The suggested new program would supplement the purchasing power of families financially unable to spend a specified amount per person for food.

YESTERDAY: Determined to get back Colonel Thornton's cattle, Mike O'Shane rides to the Mexican border. Once again he is led into a trap by Cassidy, who brings him into Fleeson's clutches. The red-headed kills him but is knocked unconscious. When he comes to he is tied down to stakes and left for the ants to pick clean.

Chapter 24

Sober-faced, O'Shane loped through the avenue of cottonwoods towards the Turkey. At the house, he piled wearily out of the saddle. In response to his knock, Viola Thornton appeared, but not the Viola he had last seen a week before.

The Colonel's daughter wore a dark house dress. Her face was pale and eyes red and swollen from weeping.

"Come in, O'Shane!" The girl's voice was flat and lifeless. He stepped inside. "The Colonel around?"

Her lips quivered. "He's—he's—" "He's not—dead?" he ejaculated. She nodded mutely and turned abruptly away.

"Say I'm real sorry!" O'Shane stepped quickly up to the girl and impulsively grasped her arms. She swayed towards him and buried her face in his shoulder. Instinctively, his arms went around her and she lay against him sobbing softly. Presently, she straightened, dabbing at her eyes with a tiny handkerchief.

"You should spank me, not mother me, for acting like a cry baby," she said, with a trace of her old fire. "I really can't help it, O'Shane, I am so lonely." Her eyes widened as she examined his red-pocked features. "What disease have you caught?"

"It's ant bites," he said shortly. "There's little to tell," said Viola sadly. "He rode into Big River the day after you left. That evening, Bill Parker came out and said there had been a quarrel in La Bonita and this man Wacker had shot Dad through the heart. And that's not all."

"O'Shane's lips quirked humorously. "Shoot!" "We've lost the Turkey!" "Lost the spread?" repeated the redhead incredulously.

"Dad wasn't a rich man," explained the girl. "He invested everything he had in this ranch. He borrowed money from the bank. His stock losses and Fleeson's last raid crippled him. He had pledged the ranch as security for his loans. The note is past due and the bank has given notice of foreclosure. So," she concluded ruefully, "that's the end of a dream. I can't afford a foreman, but I was never in greater need of you help and advice."

"Fired the crew?" "No, I wanted to talk with you first."

"Well," said O'Shane, pacing the floor with creased forehead, "you ain't through yet. I reckon the land covers the bank loan. You should be running mebbe a thousand head and that ain't chicken feed. We'll sell a couple hundred to raise ready cash and pay off the boys. Hold two good men to ride range. I gamble the bank ain't got a buyer and they'll rent to us."

For the first time Viola really smiled. "I knew I could depend upon you—Bulldog," she said softly.

"Forget it!" replied O'Shane brusquely, to hide his embarrassment. "How's Joan Curran?"

"Back at the Double O. She has decided to sell."

"What have I—been—been—buckin' Si Wacker for?" demanded O'Shane explosively. "What's he been bushwacking, raiding and creating hell for? The Double O. And now she goes and gives it to the sidewinder!"

"Sells, not gives," corrected Viola. "He'll pay thirty thousand dollars."

"It's worth double," groaned the redhead.

Almlessly, O'Shane wandered down to the corral, roped his pony and hit for the foothills. He wanted to be alone. His mind was a seething caldron of anger, disappointment and fury. Anger at his failure to combat Wacker's plans, disappointment at Joan Curran's action in selling the Double O, fury at his own stupidity in allowing himself to be tricked a second time by Cassidy, and his humiliation at the hands of Jules Fleeson.

Impulse urged him to ride to Big River, shoot it out with Wacker and avenge Colonel Thornton's death. But, curiously enough, thought of the Colonel's daughter checked him. Wacker's death would not save the Turkey for Viola. First salvage the spread and then attend to Wacker.

Sunk deep in thought, he headed unconsciously for the crest of Pile Ridge.

He knelt the roan round and surveyed the Double O range—Wacker's!

Clear-cut in the pellucid air, the Double O house and outbuildings, doll-like in the distance, appeared desolate and deserted. His thoughts flew to Joan Curran. Born on the range, yet too soft to face the savage emergencies of pioneer life. A lamb in a bunch of tough longhorns!

A misfit. A woman who belonged in a sheltered home thrust by fate into the midst of a wolf pack. Mentally, he compared her with Viola Thornton, reared in the east, unaccustomed to the ways of the range. Yet, somehow, she fitted in. He could not imagine the blue-eyed blonde breaking under pressure. She was fashioned of tougher fiber. There was a girl a fellow could tie to!

He thrust the thought aside. What use would a Colonel's daughter have for a roving rider, a saddle bum with a face like—a bulldog!

Abruptly, his body tensed and he snapped out of his day-dream. From the chimney of the distant Double O ranch house a puff of black smoke floated into the clear air and slowly drifted away. As he watched, a second followed, a third. No more.

"Joan Curran's in trouble!" muttered the redhead.

"That's a distress signal!" He picked his pony and plunged down the slopes into Pile Valley.
